New Delhi: Delhi’s top business leaders took a break on Sunday evening to participate in an offbeat city walk with Delhiites called “Power Break: A Walk in the Rain – Discovering Heritage.”

The two-hour heritage walk started at 8 am and people were encouraged to dress up in traditional wear.

New Delhi: Business leaders took a walk around Hauz Khas on a pleasant Sunday morning at 8 am. The walk was led by Nidhi Bansal, co-founder of India City Walks. The group was narrated stories and local myths by professor Najaf Haider, who teaches history at JNU. Both familiarised themselves with local history by walking around the lake. The group later joined for a replenishing breakfast.

New Delhi: The two-hour heritage walk began at 8 am on Sunday with corporate leaders waking up early on the cloudy morning to participate in the event. The Project for a Replenishing Breakfast was led by Nidhi Bansal, co-founder of India City Walks. The group was narrated stories and local myths at JNU. Both familiarised themselves with local history by walking around the lake. The group later joined for a replenishing breakfast.

New Delhi: The two-hour heritage walk began at 8 am on Sunday with corporate leaders waking up early on the cloudy morning to participate in the event. The Project for a Replenishing Breakfast was led by Nidhi Bansal, co-founder of India City Walks. The group was narrated stories and local myths at JNU. Both familiarised themselves with local history by walking around the lake. The group later joined for a replenishing breakfast.

New Delhi: The two-hour heritage walk began at 8 am on Sunday with corporate leaders waking up early on the cloudy morning to participate in the event. The Project for a Replenishing Breakfast was led by Nidhi Bansal, co-founder of India City Walks. The group was narrated stories and local myths at JNU. Both familiarised themselves with local history by walking around the lake. The group later joined for a replenishing breakfast.

New Delhi: The two-hour heritage walk began at 8 am on Sunday with corporate leaders waking up early on the cloudy morning to participate in the event. The Project for a Replenishing Breakfast was led by Nidhi Bansal, co-founder of India City Walks. The group was narrated stories and local myths at JNU. Both familiarised themselves with local history by walking around the lake. The group later joined for a replenishing breakfast.

New Delhi: The two-hour heritage walk began at 8 am on Sunday with corporate leaders waking up early on the cloudy morning to participate in the event. The Project for a Replenishing Breakfast was led by Nidhi Bansal, co-founder of India City Walks. The group was narrated stories and local myths at JNU. Both familiarised themselves with local history by walking around the lake. The group later joined for a replenishing breakfast.

New Delhi: The two-hour heritage walk began at 8 am on Sunday with corporate leaders waking up early on the cloudy morning to participate in the event. The Project for a Replenishing Breakfast was led by Nidhi Bansal, co-founder of India City Walks. The group was narrated stories and local myths at JNU. Both familiarised themselves with local history by walking around the lake. The group later joined for a replenishing breakfast.

New Delhi: The two-hour heritage walk began at 8 am on Sunday with corporate leaders waking up early on the cloudy morning to participate in the event. The Project for a Replenishing Breakfast was led by Nidhi Bansal, co-founder of India City Walks. The group was narrated stories and local myths at JNU. Both familiarised themselves with local history by walking around the lake. The group later joined for a replenishing breakfast.

New Delhi: The two-hour heritage walk began at 8 am on Sunday with corporate leaders waking up early on the cloudy morning to participate in the event. The Project for a Replenishing Breakfast was led by Nidhi Bansal, co-founder of India City Walks. The group was narrated stories and local myths at JNU. Both familiarised themselves with local history by walking around the lake. The group later joined for a replenishing breakfast.

New Delhi: The two-hour heritage walk began at 8 am on Sunday with corporate leaders waking up early on the cloudy morning to participate in the event. The Project for a Replenishing Breakfast was led by Nidhi Bansal, co-founder of India City Walks. The group was narrated stories and local myths at JNU. Both familiarised themselves with local history by walking around the lake. The group later joined for a replenishing breakfast.

New Delhi: The two-hour heritage walk began at 8 am on Sunday with corporate leaders waking up early on the cloudy morning to participate in the event. The Project for a Replenishing Breakfast was led by Nidhi Bansal, co-founder of India City Walks. The group was narrated stories and local myths at JNU. Both familiarised themselves with local history by walking around the lake. The group later joined for a replenishing breakfast.